Exercises of the Graduates of the Presbyterian Grammar and High School. at the First Presbyterian Church, Vesterday,

Score of Young Ladies Indulge in Music and Essays before a Large and Critical Audience of Relatives and Friends.

At the First Presbyterian church on Poplar street, corner of Third, yesterday forenoon, the commencement exercises of the gradu-ating class of 1878, and of the Presbyterian rammar and high school, were inaugurated. The lecture-room of the church was filled with school girls, ladies and gentlemen at an early hour. The interesting exercises commenced at half-past ten o'clock, and opened with a prayer and a hymn entitled A Crown For the Young. "RETROSPECTION."

The first essayist was Miss Lizzie Mallory The beautiful dreamy-eyed reader of this ssay seemed indeed to look far off into some ely past, and while she lead her hearers ugh the lovely scenes of her "never and graceful figure gave additional effect to a very fine essay, full of philosophic thought, ich in metaphor, and abounding in illustraions. Miss Mallory, who had the honor of opening the exercises, is the accomplished daughter of Mr. W. B. Mallery, of our city. For three years she has been a member of the school, and has won the highest en-comiums from her teachers for constancy and faithfulness in every duty of school life. If perfection were attainable in this scene of action it would surely be ascribed to her. In the contest for honors, the difference in averages between Miss Mallory and Miss Annie Meacham was but four-tenths of one hundred The examination papers in the contest for honors were examined by a commit tee of gentlemen, and it excited unusual interest in the school and in the community That it was fairly divided cannot be ques-

DAUGHTERS OF CONSOLATION. Miss Hattie Ennis was the author of this essay. The composition developed a vein of deep religious thought and the highest ad miration and appreciation of woman's noble mission of ministration to the weak and sorowing of this world. Miss Ennis read her essay excellently well. She possesses a clear, ich voice, and that added greatly to the ef fectiveness of the essay. The reading of the ssay was followed by music. Chorus, Happy Moments, by the junior classes. "MRS. O'FIE AND MRS. O'K."

The third essayist was Miss Mary Gallaway. The production was of a somewhat humorous yet satarical character, reminding one of the Thackeray school of literature. The essay was quaint, yet rather philosophicat in style and sentiment. The essayist pre-sented two forcible and well-drawn pictures "The Scandal Monger" and her opposite. Few persons so young are able to hold, so truly, "the mirror up to nature." was an evidence of deep thought and an appreciation of the humorous displayed in the composition, which were noticed by the attentive audience.

Song. The Swallows' Farewell, by Misses Olive Elv. Lon Saunders and Fannie Fussell. The above musical production was pleasingly rendered by the young ladies.

"PLEASING THE LORDS OF CREATION." The fourth essayist was Miss Sallie White. The composition was full of good hits and witty sayings. She certainly pleased the lords of creation by her daring attacks, and she may rest assured that she never will fail to please them, notwithstanding her assertions to the contrary. The essay was well delivered, and was received with satisfaction and pleasure by the audience. MUSIC.

Miss Annie Conrad followed with a vocal olo, which was rendered in a musical and praiseworthy manner. "SCHOOL DAYS." Miss Laura Crosson was the fifth essayist. and she delivered an excellent discourse on the above theme. It was a brief yet wellwritten essay, expressing many grave houghts on the methods of improving the time at school. Miss Crosson read the essay in an unexceptionable manner. MUSIC. La Somnambula-Miss E. Ringwald. This ifficult piece of music was well sung by the young lady, who evidently possesses a talent which she should continue to cultivate assiduously.

"LOOKING HEAVENWARD." The sixth essayist was Miss Lucille Gallaway, a young lady whose gladsome, radiant and fair face always creates the liveliest and most pleasing impression in the minds of those whose fortune it is to meet her in social life. The e-say was of the meditative and dreamy style, a creation developed of thought and reflection. It was replete with just such reflective pathos as might be expected from a afternoon journal, of yesterday, says: 'Harry Robinson, alias York, will be tried this afternoon for the larceny of a beafsteak from Dr. Porter's residence, on Vance street. He was close. The pretty essayist and philosopher should have been in the school so dreamingly At the close of the reading more music was rendered. Chorus, Watchman, Tell Us of the

ONE OF THE "NO NAME SERIES." The seventh essay was read by Miss Effie Davis. It was quite original, and was interspersed with puns, which sparkled forth here and there to the amusement of the audience The general handling of the subject last chosen was full of good thoughts on life's great business, Making Money. The essay was read effectively in a clear, ringing voice. It was well received.

"NATURE PROCLAIMS A DEITY." Miss Lelia Waldron was the next essayist. The subject promised well, and the handling of it by Miss Waldron did not disappoint th merchants in Brandon, to buy goods on a hearers. The production evidently was the credit; he stated that he had a good crop, fruit of long study in the beginnings of was not trading with any other merchants, science, here taken deep root in this young and was only indebted elsewhere to the girl's mind, and which some day may lead amount of twenty dollars. A vein of original that no needle was practically forgotten, but six years ago the life the inal wit ran through the composition like a thread. It was read in a clear, sweet tone of length worked its way through and came voice, which was distinctly heard in every part of the lecture-room. It delighted every person present, as did also the modest mien, petite form and lovely face of the speaker. MUSIC.

Farewell Hymn, by the junior classes.

VALEDICTORY. The valedictorian was Miss Annie Meacham. The sweet melody of her voice was re-markable, and one could but think her voice the best illustration of her beautiful essay.

The Sweet Voices of Nature and of Life was The Sweet Voices of Nature and of Life was by Mrs. Phillips and some of her neighbors, her theme. The play of fancy, the delicacy standard cure for all bowel diseases. Bears breathed the sweetness of character which the written signature of Dr. M'Cabe on each shines in every linament of her lovely face. " Fancy is a fairy that can bear Ever the melody of nature's voice And see all lovely visions that she will." In taking leave of her school Miss Meacham displayed a tenderness that brought tears to other eyes than her own. During her school days her long and unwearied exertions were crowned with success in more than one of the trade heretofore extended to me, with in whom the public can rely and place imdepartment. A Strange Experience. The Watertown (N. Y.) Dispatch says: Twenty-three years ago Mrs. Ellen Phillips, now residing on Factory street, Watertown, lived in Utica. One evening, while dancing her baby on her knee, she felt a sharp pain in her left foot, and on examining her slipper found a small hole in it, as though made by a needle. She at once sent for a doctor, who examined her foot, and pronounced his length worked its way through and came from her left leg. This brought to her mind the occurrence of so many years before, and the perforated slipper was the subject of conversation again for a time. In its turn it was forgotten, until last Tuesday, when the remainder of the needle, the eye, with a little more than half the shank, was pulled from the right leg, a little above the knee. After finding a resting place in this woman's body for twenty three years, the needle was son county, as the testimony elicited before a court of magistrates shows, was of the most heartless and brutal character. It is hardly to be wondered at, therefore, that the perpetrators of the diabolical deed should have had hemselves closely guarded at all hours to boundless hights. The prisoners seemed to feel the throbbing of this pulse and trembled at its beating. Mrs. Groves had gone to the spring to fetch water. There awaiting her coming, with brutal lusts, were the miscreants, Pearson and Sadler. She was accosted as soon as she reached the spring. Pearson asked her if she did not want to "go bird hunting." "No," said she, looking up at them with great astonishment. "What business have I to go bird hunting?" "It matters not," said Sadler, in a ruffianly tone; "you must go." With this he seized her with a tightening grasp by the arm, and pointing his gun at her head, told her if she made a noise he would kill her. Pearson followed on behind with his gun aimed at the trembling woman. She was taken a mile into a dense wood, where but few persons entered, and there outraged. Her testimony was so positive in its character and o strongly corroborated that the assemblage had but one belief-that the prisoners were guilty. A general murmur of indignation ran through the throng when the justices said, after two minutes consultation, that they had concluded to send the prisoners to jail in default of a bond of two thousand dollars. The feeling against them so steadily augmented that twenty-five men, armed with double-barreled shot-guns, were necessary to escort them with safety to the Mitchell depot. It was understood that they were to be taken via Edgefield junction to Springfield, but, instead, they were brought to Nashville for safe keeping. The officers state that in order to secure the prisoners from the mob, Thursday and Friday night, they were forced to take them out distances of five and seven miles, forbidding any one to follow. They rambled about from W. Ware, J. Leslie, James Bohan, J. Sullivan, J. Sheehan, J. Brannon, S. S. Lewellin, W. Dugan, James Carr, A. Welch, G. C. Dugan, James Carr, A. Welch, G.

It is generally understood that Mr. John T. Moss is a candidate for attorney-general of the Bartlett circuit court, and will fore the Democratic convention which meets to-day, and his nomination will be urged by his friends. Mr. Moss has had considerable experience in the criminal practice, he having evoted his time exclusively to that department for the last seven years. Mr. Moss has developed considerable strength in the contest for the office, and, if nominated and elected, will make a good and faithful officer. CAPTAIN R. J. BLACK, who has so long and so efficiently filled the office of deputylerk and master of the chancery court, will ubmit his name to the Democratic convention as a candidate for the office of clerk of the county court. He comes before the people simply upon his own merits. His capacity and integrity no one can question. His riends claim that he has developed a strength and popularity among all classes which even surpased his most sanguine ex-pectations when he first commenced the canvass. He is certainly a gentleman of enviable reputation among the best people both in the city and country. He will be a strong man before the convention. REV. MILES GRANT, president of the American advent mission society, is in the city. The reverend gentleman is in his fiftyninth year and is remarkably hale and hearty, more like a man of forty. He has been a strict vegetarian between twenty and thirty years, and says he never met any minister young or old, who was equal to him in en-durance. His health is perfect. He does not use glasses, and his mind is as clear as crystal. When traveling, he rarely uses a sleeping-car. He arrived yesterday morning, after traveling two nights and nearly two days, and the only sleep he got was in an ordinary car, and he felt as fresh as though he had his usual rest. He eats only two meals a day, and small ones at that, and does not recollect of having been ill a day since he adopted this diet. A GERMAN citizen of this city writes as fol lows: "As the convention meets to-morrow (Thursday), let me, in behalf of my fellowermans, say a word in regard to Mr. Charles A. Beehn, who is a candidate before the Democratic and Conservative convention for the position of register. Mr. Beehn, if I mistake not, has lived in Memphis twenty-one years, during which time he has endeared himself to the people of every nationality, but most o all to the Germans, of whom he is a just and intelligent representative, and to whom he is and has been a true and tried friend. The Germans now ask to be represented in the nominees of the convention, and they also ask I have this day sold to MESSRS. RANDLE, that Mr. Beehn be selected. I regret exceedingly that circumstances will not allow me to be in attendance to aid you in making appropriate honors "to the soldierly qualites of our fallen brave." Nothing would be more grateful to my feelings. For, although there is no communion be-tween the living and the dead, it compen-sates the human heart to bestow respectful grief and tribute upon the memory of friends who are "no more." And, if possible, in a higher sense, it gratifies the surviving heroes of a great, though lost and disbannered cause, to enshrine with tributary memorials their late comrades-in-arms who "died on the field of honor." Wishing that every possible success may attend you in this noble enterprise, and most gratefully acknowldg-ing the favor of your invitation, I have the necessary to say that as a teacher she is sec- Cigars—the best in the United States—for honor, gentlemen, to be, with the utmost re-

Resolved, That the Democratic-Conservative party of Shelby county, in convention assembled, adopt the following resolutions applicable to the approaching campaign, and as a platform upon which its nominees shall stand before the people.

Resolved, That all honest labor should be protected and receive its proper and just reward; that this convention approves of the "Mechanics Lieu Law," and recommend that in addition to what is now the law appropriate provision be made to protect mechanics and laborers against imposition and fraud, where buildings are erected or improvements made upon the property of married women with their knowledge the property of married women with their knowledge and consent.

Recolved, That we favor a strict construction of the laws for the collec'ion of taxes; that all assessments of taxes should be equal and uniform, and should be paid promptly by all classes for the necessary maintenance of state and local government. We desire a more certain and speedy execution of these laws, and such additional provisions as will compel the payment of taxes now in arrear and prevently de-linquencies in the future on the part of those who are able but unwilling to bear their share of the pubic burdens.

Resolved, That we advocate a readjustment of the recognize the importance and necessity of capacity and integrity on the part of those holding office and recommend a compe, sailon appropriate to the services rendered, we on the other hand believe that the fees and perquisites of many of the offices are disproportionately large and should be reduced until the income accruing from this source shall approximate the rewards of labor and industry in the ordinary pursuits and avocations of life. To attain this end, a maximum should be fixed by law to incomes accruing from fees and perquisites of office and the excess beyond this rate into the public treasury.
